JANUARY 14TH 2014, 3.00PM

Annual on farm auction of ELK/WAPITI Sires and Yearling Cows

T I K A N A

SOUTHLAND NEW ZEALAND

Welcome to this our 11th on farm sale at Tikana where we are very proud of the offering presented. It is satisfying to reflect on our progress. Prior to having our own sale we were part of the Southern Elite Elk & Wapiti group in the late 1990's and early 2000's. In those days the benchmark to qualify for the Gold section meant producing 3yr olds cutting greater than 5 kg - we used to manage 2 or 3 each year. Now the bottom 2 or 3 in our sale exceed 5.0kg.

This year's offering includes eight 3year old bulls cutting EWSupreme velvet – double the number we had last year.

Our involvement in DEERSelect and the use of eBVs has enabled us to also make rapid progress in traits other than velvet. An eBV(estimated Breeding Value) is the genetic merit of an individual for a given trait once all environmental factors are removed. This year all bulls and yearling cows are offered with their ranking within the sale for Growth eBV , Velvet eBV and Eye Muscle Area ceBV.

As is normal in all populations there will never be a “superdeer” which ranks highest for all traits. What this does allow however is for buyers to select based on traits most important to them and their farming operation. You may for example place more importance on growth and carcass composition than velvet - the information is there for you to make the call.

We are continuing to collect saliva each year from all fawns to determine their CARLA levels. The technology to determine heritability of parasite tolerance in deer based on CARLA is still being developed. We aim to offer deer in future with an eBV for parasite tolerance.

Prospective purchasers are welcome to visit prior to sale day. Just give us a call to arrange a time to view the animals and discuss how best we can accommodate your requirements. We thank past purchasers and welcome them and new buyers to our 2014 offering.

Dave Lawrence & Donna Day

Estimated Breeding Values – eBV

Breeding values put a figure on the genetic worth of an animal for a given trait and indicate the amount that the progeny of that animal will gain or lose for that trait. They are an invaluable tool for selection but will never replace eye appraisal. Both are important. An exceptionally high growth eBV is desirable but not much good if the animal is undershot or has poor feet conformation.

The Tikana eBV,s for growth, velvet and eye muscle area (EMA) at this stage are within herd values only. As such the actual value is of little meaning. That is why we have given a rank for these traits rather than a value for the sires on offer (we are happy to provide values for anyone interested). Once further testing is undertaken and evaluated then the results of the DPT will provide meaningful linkages between herds. We will then have across herd values and these values will become very relevant. This was expected to be completed by the end of 2013 but has been delayed further

The best growth eBV Eastern sires have over recent years been trialed against a range of Wapiti sires (none of which have been evaluated in DEERSelect and therefore have unknown eBV's). The results have not surprisingly been very consistent with the progeny of the Wapiti sires achieving target weights earlier. The mind boggles when you imagine how a Wapiti sire with known high growth eBV would compare.

Technology to measure carcass composition already exists in the sheep industry. The installation of Viascan technology at Alliance's Makarewa DSP will allow deer carcasses to be defined by % of shoulder, loin and rump. All yearlings from the 2011 & 2012 DPT crop have gone through this evaluation. The aim is to have deer with a higher proportion of meat in the higher value cuts – rump and especially loin. Scan measurements of EMA in live sheep has a correlation to the higher value cuts in lamb. Work to date in deer would also suggest the two are correlated. We now have 4 years EMA scan data from Tikana and so are able to produce ceBV EMA for all our deer. There has been a noticeable improvement in EMA measurements in the short time we have been selecting for this trait

Sheep farmers can select rams with an eBV for parasite tolerance. This is based on the CARLA test which measures the protective immunoglobulin produced in saliva in response to parasite challenge. Applying the same principles on saliva samples from deer, the results look encouraging at this stage. There looks to be a sire effect in the DPT animals and the data accumulated from our Tikana herd strongly suggests a dam effect as well. This test will undoubtedly have significant practical application in future.
